

laws prevent highly qualified officers from assisting in crime prevention and protecting themselves while not on duty. For example, a man who has spent his life fighting crime is often barred from helping a colleague in distress because he cannot use his service revolver—a handgun that he is required to train with on a regular basis. That same officer, active or retired, isn't allowed to defend himself from the criminals that he put in jail.

My bill seeks to change that by empowering qualified law enforcement officers to be equipped to handle any situation that may arise, wherever they are.

The community protection initiative covers only active duty and retired law enforcement personnel who meet the following criteria:

First, employed by a public agency—security guards are not covered.

Second, authorized by that agency to carry a firearm in the course of duty—all beneficiaries will have received firearms training and appropriate screening.

Third, not subject to any disciplinary action.

Retired police officers must meet all of these criteria and have retired in good standing.

In the tradition of less government, this bill offers protection to police officers and to all of our communities without creating new programs or bureaucracies, and without spending more taxpayer dollars.

Because this is a sensible, nonpartisan bill, it gained tremendous support in the 104th Congress. By the close of legislative business, the Community Protection Act was cosponsored by more than 130 Members of the House from both parties and from all regions of the country. It also gained the interest of the Crime Subcommittee, which held a hearing on the bill in July 1996.

I am proud to once again introduce this important piece of legislation and look forward to working with my colleagues to pass it as soon as possible.

THE NOTCH BABY ACT OF 1997

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 7, 1997

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing long-overdue legislation to correct an injustice done to well over 6 million senior citizens by the Social Security Amendments of 1977. My legislation, the Notch Baby Act of 1997, will adopt a transitional computation method to assure that America's "Notch Babies" born between 1917 and 1921 receive equitable Social Security benefits.

Contrary to what many think, Mr. Speaker, the Social Security Notch is a simple problem that is greatly in need of an obvious solution. Seniors born in the 5-year period after 1916 have seen lower average Social Security benefit payments than those born shortly before or after. This disparity is directly attributable to the revised benefit calculation formula that resulted from the Social Security Amendments of 1977. The facts are clear and Congress must take action to correct this unintended error.

In December 1994, the Commission on the Social Security Notch issued its final report and recommendation to Congress. The commission cited an example of two workers who retired at the same age with the same average career earnings. One of these workers was born on December 31, 1916. The other was born 48 hours later, on January 2, 1917. If both retired in 1982 at age 65, the worker born in 1917 would receive $110 less in monthly Social Security benefits. And yet the Commission on the Social Security Notch concluded that "benefits paid to those in the 'Notch' years are equitable, and no remedial legislation is in order." Mr. Speaker, I beg to differ. One-hundred and ten dollars per month represents a lot of money to any family, but even more so to the millions of retirees who live on a limited, fixed monthly income.

The time for Congress to take action to correct the "Notch" injustice is long overdue. I urge all of my colleagues to review the Notch Baby Act of 1997 and cosponsor this important piece of legislation.

A BEACON-OF-HOPE FOR ALL AMERICANS: DR. RUBIE M.
MALONE

HON. MAJOR R. OWENS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 7, 1997

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, with the 1996 election behind us, this Nation has completed another cycle for the ongoing democratic process which makes America great. The electoral process and the public officials selected through this process are invaluable assets in our quest to promote the general welfare and to guarantee the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. It is important, however, Mr. Speaker, that we also give due recognition to the equally valuable contribution of non-elected leaders throughout our Nation. The fabric of our society is generally enhanced and enriched by the hard work done year after year by ordinary volunteer citizens. Especially in our inner city communities which suffer from long public policy neglect, local grassroots leaders provide invaluable service. These are men and women who engage in activities which generate hope. I salute all such heroes and heroines as Beacons-of-Hope.

Currently, the dean, director and chairperson of the SEEK program at CUNY's John Jay College of Criminal Justice, Dr. Rubie Malone has tirelessly dedicated her life to making our society better. She is directly responsible for community enhancement efforts that impact education, social/human services, and health care.

Dr. Malone's civic contributions began at an early age when she began working with high school seniors at Bethany Baptist Church. After transferring to the Church of the Evangelical United Church of Christ, she continued working with youth and adult groups. In the Brooklyn Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., she has served as president and second vice-president and coordinator of committees and projects including School America, voter registration, health fairs, book and college fairs, teen lift, social action and political awareness, and oratorical contests. She is a member of the Brooklyn Chapter of Links, Inc., where she serves as parliamentarian and is involved in various community projects. Dr. Malone is also a former president of Jack and Jill of America.

Dr. Rubie Malone, who is the eldest of twelve children, received a bachelor of science in mathematics from Clark College; a master's degree from CUNY's Hunter College; and a doctorate of philosophy in social services from Columbia University.

Rubie Malone is a Beacon-of-Hope for central Brooklyn and for all Americans.

HOUSE SHOULD ELECT INTERIM SPEAKER

HON. NEIL ABERCROMBIE

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, January 7, 1997

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, article I, section 2 of the Constitution requires the House of Representatives to choose a Speaker. It is customary at the commencement of every Congress for members of each party to vote for the candidate decided upon by his or her caucus. Because governance of the House conforms to the democratic principles which undergird our Republic, there is no doubt that the votes of the majority will determine who shall be our Speaker.

Today, however, we are choosing a presiding officer in unprecedented circumstances. Never before has there been an election for Speaker in which one of the candidates stands formally accused by the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct of violating the rules of the House. It is not my intention today to argue the merits of the charges against the gentleman from Georgia or what if any sanctions should be imposed. I focus instead on the implications of the committee's statement of alleged violation for today's election for Speaker, for the Speakership as an institution, for the House of Representatives, and for our Nation itself.

The facts are these: The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct alleges that the gentleman from Georgia violated the rules of the House. As of this date the committee has not completed its consideration of the case, and no resolution has been achieved. When resolution does occur, it may very well involve sanctions which make the gentleman from Georgia ineligible to hold the post of Speaker.

Removal of a Speaker under those conditions would be debilitating for the House and the Nation. It would cause chaos within the House and further undermine public confidence in democratic institutions. Even if resolution of the case against the gentleman from Georgia does not result in his ineligibility for the Speakership, his election as Speaker at this time would be inadvisable for two reasons: No. 1, the time, attention, and energy he must devote to his case will diminish the personal resources available for the discharge of his duties as Speaker of the House; and No. 2, the shadow of doubt and suspicion cast by the proceedings against him will undoubtedly fall on every action of the House and bring into question the integrity of this institution.

I believe, therefore, that until the case against the gentleman from Georgia is resolved, the House should choose an interim Speaker. I reiterate my acknowledgement that the majority has the right to determine who that individual shall be. However, in order to ensure that the business of the House is conducted in an undistracted manner, free of
